In the manufacture of semiconductor devices, a substrate mounting apparatus called as a processible plate is used in which a wafer boat in which a large number of wafers are accommodated and are to be processed in succession is mounted on a fixture having the same size as that of the wafer boat, the wafer boat and the fixture are placed on the wafer carrying table of a batch type single wafer processing apparatus, and each wafer is successively taken out of the wafer boat by the single wafer processing apparatus to be subjected to various processes, and the wafer is returned to the wafer boat by a robot. In the substrate mounting apparatus, when the wafer boat is mounted on the fixture, the wafer boat is slid on the fixture. The wafer boat is fixed to the fixture by screwing a plurality of mounting bolts provided on the fixture into threaded holes provided on the inner circumferential surface of the wafer boat. However, since the threaded holes of the wafer boat are provided to each wafer of the wafer boat, for instance, in the case of a wafer boat which accommodates 200 wafers, 800 mounting bolts are required. Since the mounting bolts are screwed into the threaded holes, the mounting operation is troublesome, and the mounted state of the wafer boat becomes unstable. Further, the wafer boat is likely to be twisted and therefore the wafer to be processed may be damaged. In view of the above, it is an object of the present invention to provide a substrate mounting apparatus which permits the mounting of a wafer boat, accommodates the wafer boat to be successively loaded, and realizes a stable mounting operation of the wafer boat.
