WWE Hall of Fame Inductees: Royal Rumble 2007 He is the greatest of all time, and he has made his way into the WWE Hall of Fame. On Tuesday, January 20, 2007, The Rock will have his place in history as he becomes the fifth and final inductee to the WWE Hall of Fame. The Rock entered the WWE in 1993 and made his way up the ranks to become one of the premiere stars of the 1990s. In addition to being a face (which turned heel in 2002), The Rock was an ambassador for both the Special Olympics and the Alliance for a Better Tomorrow. He has also been a game show host and appeared in TV movies such as The Mummy 3 and Varsity Blues. I feel The Rock is deserving of this honor. He has done so much in his career and is still going strong.

Jordan – High Profile In the late 1980s, a young man by the name of Michael "The Miz" Jordan made his way to the Royal Rumble as a last-minute replacement. Jordan was the nephew of Jack and Jerry Lawler. The family had previously been involved in the wrestling business when Jack wrestled under the name "Uncle Jack." Jordan entered at #1 but was eliminated by the Animal. The Miz' short, but memorable career in the WWE ended on his way to Wrestlemania VII against The Honky Tonk Man. There, he became a three-time WWE Champion and part of a long line of Triple Threats. The Miz has also done a lot of TV (having been a regular on the Syfy channel's Eureka, TNT's SummerSlam and ESPN's Monday Night Football), acted (having been a part of an all-star acting production of Our Town) and been on the road with WWE Legends. The Miz also became the first wrestler in the history of the WWE to defeat three Intercontinental Champions. While I don't think The Miz should have entered the Hall of Fame, I still think he's worthy. He's been a part of the WWE since the late 1980s and hasn't missed a beat.
