Category:Component-based software engineering Category:Microsoft development tools Category:Utilities for WindowsEuropean shares touch record highs as investors seek bargains. U.S. stock futures pointed to a mixed open after US President Donald Trump tweeted that China and the United States were in talks to end their trade dispute. Traders work on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange. The benchmark S&P 500 has gained 2.8 percent this month as investors seek bargains ahead of Trump's meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping next month. The S&P 500 is now little changed from its record close on May 2. It has risen for seven of the last eight days. "The market has been on a tear over the last few weeks, and it's feeling a little bit like the market is just printing money," said Jason Pride, a senior investment strategist at Glenmede Investment Management in Philadelphia. Related: China's economy hits 6.5% growth "The momentum looks like it's slowing and we could see some profit-taking," Pride said. The Dow Jones Industrial Average jumped 87 points, or 0.4%, to 21,603. The Nasdaq Composite rose 0.8% to 6,445. The dollar was flat against a basket of currencies, while stocks rose in Europe. Major European indexes climbed to record highs. The benchmark FTSE 100 index of leading British shares gained 0.9% to 7,561. The CAC 40 in Paris rose 0.9% to 5,069. The DAX in Frankfurt climbed 0.6% to 11,708. The dollar was flat against a basket of currencies. The euro dipped 0.1% to $1.1703. Currencies have received a boost from a sharp drop in the pound since the Brexit vote. The British currency fell 0.9% to $1.2914 overnight. "There's no doubt Brexit is weighing on the pound," said Sue Tomkins, currency strategist at ING Bank in London. "It seems like sterling has stabilized a bit and it could have a place to go lower. There's still a risk of more downside in sterling." Stocks were poised for a relatively quiet week ahead of Tuesday's meeting between Trump and Xi at the Group of 20 meeting in Japan. Investors will be
